

GLOBAL INVESTORS' SYMPOSIUM

Capital in a Changing World

OCTOBER 28, 2026 | MEXICO CITY

As geopolitical realignments, supply chain diversification, and technological disruption reshape global markets, Mexico's role in regional supply chains and cross-border investment continues to expand. With record-breaking foreign direct investment and major infrastructure initiatives such as the Green Corridors megaproject, the country is strengthening its position as a hub for North American manufacturing.

Mexico, the United States, and Canada remain closely connected through trade, investment, and integrated supply chains, while evolving policy priorities redefine regional opportunities. Mexico's institutional investor ecosystem, including pension funds, family offices, banks, and development finance institutions, plays an increasingly important role in private markets and long-term capital allocation.

The 2026 Milken Institute Global Investors' Symposium in Mexico City will convene leaders from finance, business, technology, and government to examine the forces shaping investment across Mexico and the Americas. Through high-level discussions and invitation-only roundtables, the Symposium will foster strategic partnerships, unlock investment opportunities, and reinforce Mexico's position as a gateway for global capital.
